Sketches of Little OLD NEW YORK by J. B. Lederer

NEW YORK, July 8.—Er Lawshe, a former Louisville newspaperman and protégé of Maxie Henry Watterson, has a new story which concerns a Broadway mouse. It seems that the mouse wandered into the bar room of a celebrated Broadway hotel. Finally it stumbled on a champagne cork and nibbled at it.

Feeling exhilarated it scurried along and came to an old brandy cork which it also nibbled and next came a cordial cork. The mouse then made its way to the lobby of the hotel and standing on its hind legs in the center of the floor, said:

"Where is that dern cat that was after me?"

Herbert Corey is off again for the trenches. He has been the "off again" correspondent of the war. Four times he has traveled back and forth across the Atlantic and each time he returned he thought his fighting reporting days were over.

He sailed last week on the Patria for Italy. Before he sailed he sent the following message to a friend: "Off Monday by the Patria, which is a wop ship, so that many garlic smells can live in her. Don't know when I'll get back, but when I do I'll have many moving tales of adventure by food and field—I've forgotten the quotation, but you know what I mean. I'll throw the bull. Adios—Corey."

J. B. Lederer, the young banker, was in a cafe in the Times Square district for lunch the other day when two theatrical managers, well known in the "White Light Section," dropped in and were seated at his table.

"The newsboys were shouting a disaster that had happened to a small steamer in the narrows."

"Did you hear the Lizzie S. sunk in the bay?" asked one.

"You should not say sunk; you should say sank," corrected the other.

"That's right. How foolish of me. Sunk is the plural."

Every city has its Office Boy street—its universal answer to the boss's stern demand: "What kept you out so long at lunch time?" In New York it is Ann street, the "Home of the Cow." Ann street is but a chocolate drop's throw from the old postoffice building.

It is in Ann street that Max runs his most famous Busy Bee cafe where office boys, newsboys and deckhands may feast for a penny a wop. There are the hot waffles right off the griddle, the big ice cream cones held out by the "barkers" to the fortuitous turning of the noonday dice.

Max? Shades of the Sempiternal Hot Dog! He is the man who keeps pace with our young American institutions. Max is the C. Columbus of the office boys' luncheon and shopping district. The boys all know Max—at least they know the benevolent picture that hangs over each doorway of a Busy Bee.

As a matter of fact Max lives in an imposing castle on the Jersey coast, and when he motors into town he rarely sees the places that have made him rich. He does not know Office Boy street.

The big cafes and clubs have found a new way to keep the page boys from shouting names around the lobbies. In the cafes if men are expecting a call they get a number after leaving their names with the telephone girl. At the Friars the paging of the number of a member's letter box and not the member's name, is proving popular.

"No. 62 is wanted at the phone!" The page boy has only that to say and nothing more. The telephone operator has a list of the owners of the letter boxes on the switchboard in front of her and when a call is received for a member she gets his number and the page does the rest.

Washington News

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Mrs. S. J. Armstrong has been recommended by Congressman Neely to the postoffice department for appointment as postmaster at Tridelfia.

Fourth class postmasters for West Virginia have been appointed as follows:

At Arnett, Van S. Sarrett; Stouts Mills, R. H. Taylor; Anthem, Wetzel county, Z. T. Stewart; Loop (new office), Jackson county, John J. White, address Simonsville; Windy Gulf, Raleigh county, Robert R. Church to succeed John D. Puckett.

The members of West Virginia's national guard, which is now getting itself in readiness for a big encampment to be held at Parkersburg, will be interested in knowing that the secretary of war intends to enforce the Dick militia law to the letter and organizations of the national guard that do not comply with its provisions

Mrs. I. T. Mann has just returned from a trip to New York where she has been selecting some wonderful furnishings for her home here. Mr. and Mrs. Mann have lived for some years in the house on beautiful Sixteenth street, formerly occupied by Senator and Mrs. Ellihu Root and Representative and Mrs. Bourke Cockran, and which some years ago was the Chilean legation. The Manns have recently purchased the house and it is now undergoing extensive and elaborate repairs and remodeling. Mrs. Mann plans to have each room furnished in the handsomest of period furniture and the dining room in particular to be very ornate with mahogany furniture and antique tapestries. In the meantime, Mrs. Mann will spend most of the summer at her home at Princeton, N. J., but will make frequent trips here to keep her eye on architects and builders. Later she and Mr. Mann will go to Man-

Camel
CIGARETTES

YOU smoke some Camel Cigarettes, because they give a brand-new idea of how delightful a cigarette can be from tongue-bite, throat-parch and any unpleasant cigarette after-taste.

Camels are delightful, because they are blended choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos. You'll like them better than either kind smoked straight, they're so smooth and fragrant and refreshing.

Tobaccos blended in Camels are so expensive no coupons or premiums are offered smokers, who appreciate quality and do not expect them.

Start today to compare Camels with any cigarette in the world!
